The Caucus Race

News, Announcements and Paper Calls

The Looking Glass

The Looking Glass always welcomes submissions for the following sections and columns:

- Alice’s Academy - scholarly articles to be peer reviewed
- Emerging Voices - scholarly articles from graduate researchers and other new analysts, also formally reviewed
- The Tortoise’s Tale - scholarly articles relating to classroom and other pedagogical uses of literature, also formally reviewed
- Picture Window - scholarly articles on illustration and presentation of books, also formally reviewed
- Jabberwocky - feature articles on all aspects of children’s literature, editorially reviewed
- Curiouser and Curiouser - notes, observations and quirky items
- The Caucus Race - news, announcements and paper calls

We aim to publish at least 2 issues each year, one of which is usually specifically themed, while others would be general in focus.

While most submissions follow standard journal presentation formats (such as MLA referencing, and writing styles from conversational to academic depending on the column), innovative presentations will also be considered (technical demands allowing!)
